

Memorial Cairn Unveiled on 11th November 2012

The cairn commemorating the lives of the five brave airmen who died in a crash in 1942 was officially unveiled in the presence of relatives and over a hundred local residents. After the main ceremony there was a second wreath laid by 100 year old Jackie 'Dinger' Bell who now lives in Edinburgh but who worked on Wellington bombers during WWII.

Below is a photograph taken just after the war showing the actual crash site. The allotments on the far side of the canal are now built on as an extension of Colinton Grove
