Community Policing News – Selkirkshire – PS James Harrison

Over the winter months the Scottish Borders Community Policing Team were delighted to support the TD1 Youth Hub walks in memory of PC Sean Wright, Galashiels Community Beat Officer, who sadly passed away last year. I took part in the first one and was impressed at the dedication and professionalism of the volunteers, and the enthusiasm of the younger people that attended. The walks took place around Galashiels and Selkirk, and are hopefully to become a regular fixture.

As highlighted in the 'Tackling Serious and Organised Crime' section below, there have been a number of large cannabis cultivations discovered in the Scottish Borders recently. These have been discovered in a variety of situations, such as old farm buildings, disused hotels, nightclubs or mill buildings. I feel this would be a good opportunity to raise awareness of these.

What to look out for

You may notice new owners bringing in equipment with them when they move in, such as ventilation equipment or lighting. The premises will be adapted shortly after, and the ventilation and lighting installed. Once the premises has been set up, you may not see many people as they wish to keep a low profile.

There are a couple of other signs. Cannabis' strong and sickly sweet smell is one of them, the other is covered up windows. Often constantly pulled curtains or black out blinds. If the building has glass, there may be frequent condensation on windows due to the heat within.

A cultivation uses a large amount of electricity, so criminals often bypass electricity meters, or break into the main meter. There may be strange cables leading to the building, or in some cases holes will have been dug in the ground to join street supplies. This may often be carried out by 'fake' workmen.

The final sign to look out for is large amounts of compost or soil contained in plastic bags, often dumped by rubbish bins.

What can you do

If you suspect that there may be a cannabis cultivation near you, you can either contact Police Scotland on 101, or if you prefer to remain anonymous you can contact Crimestoppers on 0800 555 111. Your anonymity is 100% guaranteed and the information will reach the police, and may be acted on. Further information about Crimestoppers can be found at their website below

Improving Road Safety

Tackling Serious and Organised Crime

The Scottish Borders CID Proactive Unit executed 4 Drug Warrants across the command area during December, three were positive and 3 persons were charged with drug related offences.

They have also been liaising with a number of forces in England in relation to further criminality involving county lines nominals and rural acquisitive crime, particularly in the Eastern are of the Scottish Borders. Inquiries here are ongoing.

Three warrants were also executed in conjunction with other departments in relation to serious crime inquiries in The Scottish Borders.

They would again like to highlight that the local communities across the Borders may have information which they deem insignificant in relation to people being seen at disused large premises over a period of time. Any suspicious activity will be followed up by this team but it is important that the public know they can report such matters in person at any Police Station, by use of 101 or anonymously via the Crime Stoppers charity.

A recent news article about the discovery of another industrial scale cultivation in Dumfries again points to the fact this is an ongoing criminal enterprise affecting all areas of Scotland and people should remain vigilant in their communities for any suspicious activity and report it.
