

Glossary entry

Morals: Objective descriptions of an individual's personal character that are developed within a culture's ethical code, reflecting their sense of right and wrong or what ought to be (moral perspective).

Further explanation

There is a distinction between values and morals in Living Educational Theory Research: morals are given a philosophical meaning in terms of the individual's long-term core understanding of right and wrong; an exploration and clarification of values in the course of a Living Educational Theory Research enquiry may lead to a modification of the researcher's moral perspective.